

Chandigarh Tribune

Chandigarh : FRIDAY, JANUARY 19, 2007

Mobera Systems to get CMMI certification

Tribune News Service

CHANDIGARH, JANUARY 18

City-based Mobera Systems, an ISO 9001 certified company, is now adopting world-class quality processes in order to manage its internal working and deliver high quality software solutions and services to its growing base of international clients.

Mobera Systems has now engaged DQS India, the subsidiary of DQS, Germany's largest organisation for management system certification, for the maturity level 3 SCAMPI assessment on CMMI model. With the world's leading corporates like Siemens, Henkel, T-Systems, T-Mobile, IBM and BASF as its clients, DQS is one of world's largest organisation in the business of management system certification.

According to Ms Anupama Arya, Director, Mobera Systems, the company will be making significant investment in terms of cost, time and effort to achieve its goal of becoming a world-class company. "Our target is to be CMMI- assessed by May 2007," she said. DQS India shall evaluate the Mobera

Systems processes and practices leading to assurance of better quality, efficiency and security of software products and consequently will help in the scaling up of the company operations.

Mobera Systems, which recently took on a US-based software company, is focussed on developing and delivering high-performed and fully-secured software products to its customers. "This is for the first time that any IT company in the tricity has gone in for an independent CMMI certification," said Ms Arya.